

Heritage, the North Indian Cuisine

[$$] The hospitality of Indians is legendary and when you visit Heritage, you feel truly at home. Wonderful food and warm, cosy atmosphere...

The moment you enter the restaurant, you are greeted by friendly staff, who even when you are a first time customer make you feel like you are their most regular patron. The main dining room is cosy and the sofa seating so comfortable, you'll be in no hurry to leave.

The menu is extensive and includes standard North Indian fares, such as tandoor, biryanis and curries. However the beauty is that you can also discover some more unusual items, like the paneer (cottage cheese) in a different dressing than the common spinash one. It is very difficult to make a selection, as everything looks so tempting. It gets even harder once the Chef, Juby Abraham or the service staff come to your table and suggests additional items not on the menu. They are such enthusiasts! They will talk to all patrons to ask for their personal preferences in terms of spices and flavour. You feel truly unique!

Must try include hari makai (a rich spinash dish with sweet corn and cream), gosht bhuna (goat meat combined with fresh spices and herbs in tomatoes, peppers and onions flavoured sauce) and kathal ki subzi (main course of jackfruit, the owner's mum's secret recipe). The naans are also delicious, crispy yet wonderfully moist. Finish off your meal with a sinfully sweet Indian dessert and a cup of masala tea.

Overall Heritage, although not centrally located, is well worth the trip to Sixth Avenue: warm ambiance with soft music, attentive and friendly service and delicious food. You will be back for more soon. Why not try their Sunday brunch, for a different week-end experience. It is the only Indian brunch...
